

Subscription & Checkout Update

Released: 23 April 2026 Applies to: Fynla web (fynla.org)

We've rolled out a set of improvements to subscription, checkout, and plan selection. These changes address a small number of frustrating edge cases around trial renewal and clean up how plans are presented across the app and on the pricing page.

What's fixed

Trial renewal no longer gets stuck

If your free trial had ended and you tried to subscribe, the "Your Subscription Has Expired" overlay and the plan-selection popup could both show at the same time and end up layered over the Revolut payment widget — so you'd click through but never actually reach checkout. It felt like a loop.

Now the flow is linear and predictable:

1. You log in after your trial has ended and see a single prompt: "Your Subscription Has Expired" with a countdown to data deletion and two clear options.
2. Click Subscribe Now → the plan chooser opens with a close button so you can back out if you change your mind.
3. Pick a plan → the checkout page loads with the Revolut payment widget visible and ready, no overlays in the way.

If you'd rather not subscribe, Delete All Data & Start Again gives you a clean exit.

What's new

Student plan now requires a UK university email

The Student plan is now reserved for UK university students. You'll see it in the plan chooser if — and only if — your account email ends with .ac.uk (e.g. name@manchester.ac.uk, name@student.ox.ac.uk). Everyone else sees Standard, Family, and Pro.

The backend enforces this too, so a shared or bookmarked Student checkout link won't let a non-student complete the purchase. The public /pricing page still shows all four plans so students researching options can compare openly.

Plan descriptions are clearer

- Standard plan card: if the Student plan isn't on offer for you, the Standard card now lists all its features directly — no more "Everything in Student" reference to a plan you don't see.
- Family plan card: now highlights two benefits that were already true but weren't called out — Parents included and Children for free. Visible on the in-app plan chooser and on /pricing.

One place for discount codes

The plan chooser no longer has its own "Have a discount code?" field. Discount codes live on the checkout page only — less chance of typing a code into the wrong box, and the checkout page is already where we validate and apply them.

What hasn't changed

- Pricing is unchanged. Launch pricing (for the first 500 subscribers) is still active.
 - Existing subscribers keep their subscription and renewal schedule as-is.
 - The 30-day data retention period after a trial or subscription ends is unchanged.
 - Auto-renewal and invoice downloads from your profile are unchanged.
 - The public /pricing page still shows all four plans for marketing purposes.
-

Reporting issues

If anything subscription-related worked for you before today and doesn't now, please tell us:

- In-app: click the Bug button in the navbar.
- Email: the support address on the Help page.

Include the time you noticed it and which plan you were on — that helps us line it up with the deploy.

Thanks for using Fynla.